August 2008 - July 2009

Welcome to our most ambitious programme to date, eleven months of glorious music-making in the lovely setting of Milton Keynes City Church. Our midweek evening and Saturday lunchtime recitals feature artists of truly international stature as well as exceptionally talented young performers. We celebrate the anniversaries of Haydn and Mendelssohn both in concert and in 'Musical Milestones', our Monday series of illustrated talks. 'Exploring Music' on Thursdays continues to illuminate the outstanding British composers of the early Twentieth century. Rachmaninov 3rd Piano Concerto and Mozart Clarinet Concerto form orchestral highlights in September and January. Fine choral singing can be heard both in worship and concert throughout the season. Major works on offer this year include Handel: Messiah and Brahms: Requiem, while the exhilarating African Sanctus of David Fanshawe brings our season to a resounding climax. We hope you can join us regularly and look forward to your company.

MUSICAL MILESTONES: 150th Anniversary Tribute

DAME ETHEL SMYTH (1858-1944) AND HER CONTEMPORARIES

A talk illustrated with fine CD recordings by Adrian Boynton

Born 150 years ago into an upper middle-class military London family, Ethel Smyth rebelled against her background to become not only one of the most successful British women composers but also an important figure in the suffragette movement. She conducted her 'March of the Women' in Holloway Jail with a toothbrush! Significant works from her pen include a Mass in D, Concerto for Violin and Horn (aired at this year's BBC Proms), String Quartet in E minor, String Quintet in E, Sonata for Violin and Cello, beautiful songs and two operas of exceptional musical calibre, 'The Boatswain's Mate' and 'The Wreckers'. Tonight we take opportunity to explore the work of other women composers of the early Twentieth century, including Liza Lehman, Amy Beach, Lili Boulanger and Rebecca Clarke (Stanford's first woman composition student at the RCM).

JOHN IRELAND & CYRIL SCOTT

A talk illustrated with fine CD recordings by Adrian Boynton
Ireland established his reputation with a fine body of chamber music demonstrating an exceptionally refined understanding of the instruments involved. His orchestral tone poems and overtures are colourfully scored and his Piano Concerto, with its racy jazz interludes, is among the finest of the Twentieth Century. The great choral work 'These Things shall be' is an inspirational work expressing the composer's deepest hopes for mankind. Born just one month after Ireland, Cyril Scott became known as the 'English Debussy' on account of the Impressionist style of his piano and chamber works. He also produced a fine Piano Concerto, along with other symphonic and choral works.

Twins Louise and James Maltby, from Giffard Park, have distinguished themselves as orchestral principals and chamber musicians with Milton Keynes Music Service over several years. Both have won numerous awards, and first places in local festivals, and both hold the Diploma of the Associated Board of the Royal Schools of Music with distinction. Next month Louise goes to Oxford to read music at St Catherine's College while James takes up a scholarship at the Royal College of Music in London. Louise and James are accompanied by the remarkable Craig Green, who has just completed his first year of study at Christ Church, Oxford. Craig gave an outstanding recital here at the City Church earlier this year and makes his solo debut with Milton Keynes Orchestra in a few days' time.

We are proud to present the 80th Birthday celebration recital of one of Britain's most distinguished pianists. Well-known for his regular Radio 3 broadcasts, John Clegg has performed with many of the leading UK orchestras and conductors and has given solo recitals throughout the world. In 1999 he was honored with the Harriet Cohen International Award in recognition of his services to music. He is renowned for his interpretation of the French repertoire, particularly Faure, Debussy and Ravel, which he has recorded. With characteristically skilful programming, John's birthday recital draws together the threads of all the major Romantic piano schools.

MUSICAL MILESTONES: 80th Birthday Tribute

EINOJUHANI RAUTAVAARA (b1928) & THEA MUSGRAVE (b1928)

A talk illustrated with fine CD recordings by Adrian Boynton

Finland's greatest composer celebrates his 80th birthday on 9th October. His early works were influenced by the neo-classicism of Hindemith and Stravinsky. Russian influences (especially Mussorgsky and Borodin) pervade the works of the 50s, especially 'A Requiem in our Time' and the piano suite 'The Icons'. In the late 50s the composer experimented with serialism in works such as the String Quartet No 2 and Wind Octet. An almost Romantic warmth of sound characterises works like the song cycle 'Die Liebenden', the television opera 'Klaivos', the 3rd Symphony and the Cello Concerto. We compare and contrast Rautavaara's music with the work of distinguished Scottish composer Thea Musgrave, also in her 80th Birthday year. Musgrave's early diatonicism and the chromatic experiments of her middle years have fused more recently into a mature style capable of rich expressiveness in works like 'The Seasons', 'Aurora', Viola Concerto and the opera 'Mary Queen of Scots'.

"An extremely gifted pianist.... effortless pianistic command..... wide range of colour..... sensitive handling of textures..... beautifully shaped phrasing" [Yonty Solomon]

Our orchestral season opens with this irresistible all-Russian programme, featuring as its centrepiece Rachmaninov's monumental Piano Concerto No 3, a work revered by all pianists for its technical and emotional demands. ARNOLD BAX & GEORGE BUTTERWORTH

A talk illustrated with fine CD recordings by Adrian Boynton

Arnold Bax is one of Britains neglected treasures. His orchestral tone poems – 'Tintagel', 'In the Faery Hills', 'The Garden of Fand', and others – are among the finest of any of the English late romantics. His seven symphonies, luxuriantly scored and full of romantic melody, contain, to quote Michael Kennedy, "far too much good music to deserve their current total neglect." His chamber works are beautifully crafted for the instruments, and there are some exquisite short choral pieces. George Butterworth demonstrated exceptional promise as a composer before his untimely death in the trenches at Pozieres in 1916. Tonight we hear his 'The Banks of Green Willow' and 'A Shropshire Lad'.

80th Anniversary Tribute

STOCKHAUSEN (1928-2007)

A talk illustrated with fine CD recordings by Adrian Boynton

"It's hard to think of any other composer who has influenced so much the entirety of musical experience in the 20th and 21st centuries." [Tom Service, Guardian Music Critic]

Tonight we celebrate the life and work of Karlheinz Stockhausen, who died last year, just a few months short of his 80th birthday. From his pioneering visionary work in the studios of North-West German Radio in Cologne (one of whose greatest products, 'Kontakta' was featured at this year's BBC Proms) to the extraordinary trance-like brilliance of 'Stimmung' for 6 voices (also heard at this year's Proms), not to mention the sheer scale and ambition of the 'Licht' ('Light') cycle of seven operas, Stockhausen's music is the most ambitious and forward-looking of any post-war composer. Realising how much further he could take Webern's techniques he developed new theories of sound, pitch, intensity, duration, timbre and spacial position – ideas which he constantly re-examined and refined to the end of his life. Stockhausen saw his musical development as a spiritual journey. Don't miss the opportunity to share that journey as we celebrate tonight.

SIR ARTHUR BLISS & E J MOERAN

A talk illustrated with fine CD recordings by Adrian Boynton

For 22 years Sir Arthur Bliss filled the role of Master of the Queen's Music with flair and energy. His early Stravinskian phrase gave way to works in a bold, post-Elgarian style, vigorous and rich in texture. Some of his best music is to be found in his chamber works, notably the Clarinet Quintet, written for Frederick Thurston, and Oboe Quintet for Leon Goossens. His sense of drama and vivid musical imagery find their truest outlet in the ballets 'Checkmate' and 'Miracle in the Gorbals', and the excellent film score 'Things to Come'. Outstanding later works include 'Meditations on a Theme of John Blow' and the Cello Concerto. In contrast to the Bliss brilliance, we experience the warmhearted lyricism of E J Moeran in his Rhapsody for Piano and Orchestra, Symphony in G minor and Violin Concerto.

ELLIOTT CARTER (b1908)

“Modernism with soul” [Arnold Whittall]

A talk illustrated with fine CD recordings by Adrian Boynton

Elliott Carter was born in December 1908, just at the time when composers were beginning to explore those entirely new perspectives on tradition that marked music's advance into the bracing world of Modernism. In his early works he was open-minded to a fault, but it took many years for him to find a personal voice. Within the welter of competing musical accents and dialects his music may sometimes be uncompromising and technically elaborate, but it is always humane and deeply felt. Tonight we review significant works from each phase of his creative development – ‘To Music’ (1937), Piano Sonata (1945), ‘Elegy’ (1952), Double Concerto (1961), Concerto for Orchestra (1968), ‘A mirror on which to dwell’ (1975), Oboe Concerto (1987), Clarinet Concerto (1996) ‘Soundings’ (2005). Amazingly in his late 90s, this most prolific and enduring master is actively creating new works and laying the ground for distinctive musical developments in the Twenty-first Century.

Howells' mature style is a fusion of many things English, from Parry to Walton. His early chamber works reveal both a natural poet in sound and a musician keenly alive to structure. His songs are among the finest by English composers in the Twentieth century. Outstanding church music demonstrates his love of choral texture in a resonant acoustic, with many works written for particular buildings. A talk illustrated with fine CD recordings by Adrian Boynton

Finzi's refined English pastoral idiom has its roots in Elgar and Vaughan Williams but also owes much to his respect for Bach and 18th century English composers. His instrumental works - including Eclogue for Piano and Strings, Cello Concerto and the delightful Clarinet Concerto - are marked by fertile thematic inversion, tender passion and superb string textures. His spacious 'Intimations of Immortality' and 'In terra pax' make an outstanding contribution to the English choral tradition. Above all, his solo vocal works - settings of Hardy and Traherne, including the great orchestral song cycle 'Dies Natalis' - reveal his exceptional sensitivity to English verse, and mark him as a composer of true genius.

CHRISTMAS MUSIC THROUGH THE AGES

A talk illustrated with fine CD recordings by Adrian Boynton

In this seasonal special we trace the development of the carol from its origins as a medieval round dance through the homophonic and polyphonic carols of the Reformation to the 'art' and 'folk' carols of the 18th and 19th centuries and the extraordinary profusion of fine modern settings and arrangements from the pens of Vaughan Williams, Britten, Sargent, Willocks, Rutter and others.

PENDERECKI AND GORECKI: 75th Birthday Double Celebration

A talk illustrated with fine CD recordings by Adrian Boynton

Poland's two greatest living composers recently celebrated their 75th birthdays (23 November and 6 December). Gorecki's highly individual style is enriched by influences as diverse as Fourteenth century Polish chant, Palestrina's polyphony and Wagnerian orchestration. He achieved worldwide fame with his 3rd Symphony in 1977, a work of rare atmosphere and beauty. Penderecki's output includes symphonies, concertos and a host of fine chamber pieces. It is however chiefly as a vocal composer that he has achieved international recognition. His inspirational St Luke Passion (influenced by Bach) and Polish Requiem are among the finest and most important works of the Twentieth Century.

"A truly great cellist... moreover a truly great musician" [Benjamin Zander]

"An outstanding young pianist" [Musical Opinion]

In a highly original musical event to open our 2009 season we offer, in effect, two separate 45 minute recitals in one evening, one for solo cello, one for solo piano. James Barralet plays Kodaly's monumental masterwork for solo cello and the mesmerizing and evocative solo sonata of Ligeti. Hiroaki Takenouchi contrasts the colourful Third Sonata of Russian prodigy Alexey Stanchinsky (who met a tragic death in 1914 at the age of 26) with the incredible final sonata of Beethoven. James graduated from the Royal Northern College of Music in 2006 with first class honours and went on to give acclaimed performances across Europe, India, Korea and the USA. In 2007 he won the Abstract Securities London Records competition, leading to the launch of his first solo CD. Hiroaki received the HRH The Queen Mother Rosebowl on completion of his studies at the Royal College of Music and was made a Junior Fellow of the College. Recent performances include the Festivals of Bath, Cheltenham and Salzburg, recitals throughout the UK, Japan, Austria, Canada, Germany and Italy, and several world premiere recordings.

The Bicentenary of the death of Haydn is a great opportunity to celebrate, and tonight we do so in style with the extraordinary early symphony 'Le Matin' which gives solo opportunities to several instruments, even the double bass(!), and one of the most exciting of the composer's mature symphonies, 'La Reine'. We also feature two brilliant young soloists in great Mozart Concertos. Abigail Burrows studied at the Purcell School and Royal College of Music, during which time she won several prizes and represented the UK at an international festival in Moscow. Ben Westlake, aged 16, studies locally with Paul Harris and in Berlin with Karl Leister. He has performed at major venues such as Cadogan Hall and Wigmore Hall and was recently the soloist in Weber's Concertino with South Bank Sinfonia. In 2007 he was a finalist on BBC2's Classical Star. VAUGHAN WILLIAMS Songs of Travel

MENDELSSOHN: Songs without Words

SCHUMANN: Dichterliebe

Composers with anniversaries in 2008, 2009 and 2010 take centre stage in this celebration recital. Vaughan Williams (d.1958) is represented by his magnificent cycle 'Songs of Travel', nine superb settings of Robert Louis Stevenson, including classics such as 'The Vagabond' and 'Roadside Fire'. A selection of 'Songs without Words' neatly characterised, beautifully shaped and richly coloured, celebrates this year's Mendelssohn (b.1809) anniversary. To conclude we anticipate the Schumann (b.1810) bicentenary with the sublime 'Dichterliebe', one of the great cycles of all time. We are delighted to welcome back Ian Priestley (currently appearing with Scottish Opera) who gave us such a powerful and moving 'Winterreise' cycle last year, and superb local pianist Michael Keep.

RUTLAND BOUGHTON AND EDMUND RUBBRA

A talk illustrated with fine CD recordings by Adrian Boynton

Tonight we consider the remarkable contribution to English music of two 'local boys'. Aylesbury-born Rutland Broughton effectively founded Glastonbury Festival - as a vehicle for Wagnerian-style choral dramas based on Arthurian legend! Alongside major choral and theatre works, he wrote fine symphonies, concertos and chamber music. Northampton-born Edmund Rubbra's prolific output covers all musical forms except opera. His superb handling of modal harmony in a distinctively English tradition makes him a more than worthy successor to his teacher, Holst. His output includes beautiful religious choral works, outstanding chamber works and songs, and no less than eleven symphonies, whose musical substance and spiritual grandeur have still to be fully appreciated.

Prague-born Libor Novacek graduated from the Guildhall School of Music and Drama in 2004 with highest honours and was immediately selected by the Young Concert Artists Trust. He went on to take top prizes in international competitions leading to solo recitals and concerto performances in prestigious venues throughout the world. In February 2007 his third CD (of Liszt) was Editor's Choice in Gramophone Magazine and in June he was awarded a Diploma d'Honneur at the 33rd Liszt International Record Grand Prix in Hungary. Tonight's recital includes a rare opportunity to hear a complete performance of Janacek's 'On an Overgrown Path', one of the most extensive and richly expressive of all Romantic piano cycles, reflecting memories of the composer's youthful years, the beautiful countryside around his home, and the pain of the loss of his beloved daughter, Olga.

MUSICAL MILESTONES: Haydn Bicentenary Celebration

HAYDN (1732-1809) (i) Keyboard and Chamber Music

A talk illustrated with fine CD recordings by Adrian Boynton

Towards the end of his 30 years in the relative seclusion of the Esterhazy household, Haydn is said to have remarked: "There was no one near to confuse me, so I was forced to become original." His vast output of music is notable for the number of delights and surprises contained in almost every work. He exploited the capabilities of instruments and voices to the full, and every genre in which he worked he enlarged, extended and re-shaped. In the first of three Haydn evenings, we focus on the magnificent legacy of 83 string quartets, covering a period of more than 40 years. These contain some of his most striking and original ideas. We also extract the pearls from 32 piano trios, 126 baryton trios, 52 piano sonatas and 32 pieces for mechanical clock!

WILLIAM WALTON:

(i) Early Achievements

A talk illustrated with fine CD recordings by Adrian Boynton

Walton is one of the most fascinating of Twentieth Century British composers. Fundamentally lyrical and romantic, two basic ingredients characterise all his works: a sparkling rhythmic impetus, with wide intervals and tangy harmonies, and an expressive melancholy. It is as if two influences were perpetually at war in his nature – the 20th century Stravinsky-Prokofiev strain and the 19th century Elgar. In his finest works these opposing forces are successfully reconciled. Tonight we assess Walton's early achievements: 'Portsmouth Point' Overture, Symphony No 1, Viola Concerto, Violin Concerto, 'Belshazzar's Feast' and the ever popular 'Façade'.

Haydn Bicentenary Celebration

HAYDN (ii) The Symphonies and Concertos

A talk illustrated with fine CD recordings by Adrian Boynton

Haydn's 104 symphonies display a remarkable variety of moods, ranging from the tragic tone of the 'Lamentation' No 26 to the extreme playfulness and rollicking finale of No 60. Some have a quasi-religious cast, such as No 30, based on a Gregorian Easter chant. Others, like 'La Reine', contain exuberant folk-like moments. Noteworthy are Haydn's wit, elegance, imaginative use of instruments, innovative structures, artful contrapuntal textures, and the intensity of emotional expression. The last 12 symphonies, written for London audiences, are hallmarked by a perfection of all these qualities combined. Haydn also wrote fine concertos for horn, trumpet, cello and keyboard.

In contrast to the emphatic brass-oriented 1st Symphony, Walton's Symphony No 2 has a more mellow brilliance, tinged with vibraphone, piano and celesta. The outstanding film scores of his mature years - 'First of the Few' and 'Henry V' - demonstrate a successful fusion of neoclassical techniques, English pastoral Romanticism and the Elgar 'Pomp and Circumstance' idiom. Tonight we also explore the sparkling Hindemith Variations, the shimmering colours of the Cello Concerto and some fine chamber music.

THE CORNERSTONE CHAMBER CHOIR & ORCHESTRA

Leader: Philippa Barton Conductor: Adrian Boynton

The German Requiem is the central work of Brahms' career. It is unique in that it does not use the words of the traditional Requiem Mass but a Biblical text chosen by Brahms himself, centring round faith in the Resurrection rather than fear of the Day of Judgement. It inspired Brahms to produce some of his greatest music. Each section has its own character, emphasized by Brahms' subtle instrumentation. There are warm glowing colours of great beauty, majestic 'Handelian' fugues and powerful climaxes. Tonight's programme also includes the Academic Festival Overture which Brahms wrote to acknowledge conferment of an honorary PhD on him by the University of Breslau, and the popular Variations on a theme of Haydn, arguably one of the finest sets of variations by any Romantic composer.

Haydn said "At the thought of God, my heart leaps for joy and I cannot help my music doing the same." Following completion of his huge symphonic legacy, and now well into his 60s, he embarked on a series of large-scale vocal works: six great Masses, (including the 'Nelson', 'Maria Theresa' and 'Harmony' Masses), 'The Creation', still second only to 'Messiah' in its popularity with choirs and audiences, and 'The Seasons', his last major work, celebrating the bounties of nature. As well as savouring this wonderful late flowering, we explore moments from Haydn's operas and vocal chamber music, including some fine arrangements of British folksong.

CONSTANT LAMBERT - ALAN RAWSTHORNE - HOWARD FERGUSON

A talk illustrated with fine CD recordings by Adrian Boynton

Tonight we explore the work of three of Walton's most important contemporaries. Jazz-influenced Constant Lambert enjoyed early success with his setting of Sacherell Sitwell's 'Rio Grande' before going on to write colourful ballet and theatre scores. Alan Rawsthorne abandoned dentistry for music and produced a fine body of orchestral and chamber works, distinctive in style, strong in structure and impeccable in craftsmanship. Belfast-born Howard Ferguson (the centenary of whose birth we have recently celebrated) combined great lyrical warmth and romantic feeling with a firmness and clarity of construction based on traditional forms, in a small but distinguished output of instrumental and vocal works. Some of tonight's repertoire may be unfamiliar, but there are some real gems to savour.

Mendelssohn's gifts were phenomenal. He was a good painter, had wide literary knowledge and wrote brilliantly. He was a superb pianist, a good violinist, an exceptional organist, and an inspiring conductor, with an amazing musical memory. His genius as a composer led Bulow to describe him as the most complete master of form after Mozart. Tonight we survey the works of his teens and early twenties, including the Piano Quartets in C minor and F minor (the first of these written at the age of 13), the exhilarating Octet (his first 'mature' work, written at the age of 16), String Quartets in E flat and A minor, beautiful songs and solo piano pieces, the overtures 'A Midsummer Night's Dream' and 'The Hebrides' (Fingal's Cave), Piano Concerto in G minor and 'Reformation' Symphony.

Tippett's life was his music. A late developer, he did not achieve any kind of recognition until 1935 with his first String Quartet. The two major works which made his name were the Concerto for Double String Orchestra and the oratorio 'A Child of Our Time' a work of extraordinary emotional power, and the first of several compositions to reconcile personal vision with 'collective' feeling. The opera 'Midsummer Marriage' (1952) marks the culmination of his early lyrical style. Other important works of these years are Symphony No 1, 'Fantasie on a Theme of Corelli' and the moving song-cycle 'Heart's Assurance'.

Some of Mendelssohn's later works may lack the youthful spontaneity of his earlier compositions, but they demonstrate superb craftsmanship, melodic elegance, inventive orchestration and a fine blend of classical structure and romantic colour.

Tippett's compositions of the mid/late 1950s inhabit an opulent sound-world of expressive harmonies, rippling woodwinds and soaring strings (Piano Concerto, Symphony No 2). These colourful ideas are organised into tighter blocks of sound in the works of the 60s (King Priam, Concerto for Orchestra), matching contemporary developments in the music of Stravinsky and Messiaen. The final years are marked by a sublime lyricism and a vision of reconciliation (The 'Ice Break', 3rd and 4th Symphonies, 'The Rose Lake'). Most often it is from black American music, specifically the blues, that healing comes.

SUMMER CELEBRATION featuring

DAVID FANSHAWE: AFRICAN SANCTUS

THE CORNERSTONE CHAMBER CHOIR AND INSTRUMENTAL ENSEMBLE

Directed by Adrian Boynton

David Fanshawe spent much time in Africa in his mid to late twenties absorbing African culture, researching into African folk music, and making a unique library of location recordings. In 1972 he wrote the extraordinary 'African Sanctus', which blends, dramatically and movingly, the authentic sounds of various regions of North and East Africa with the colours, rhythms and harmonies of Twentieth Century Western music. An award-winning BBC television film of the 'Sanctus', made on location, was shown in many parts of the world in the mid 70s, and since then the work has received international acclaim. We are hoping that David Fanshawe will make a guest appearance on this special evening to introduce the work and speak about his musical journey along the River Nile. Our celebration concert will include other works too. Full details of the musical programme will appear on our website, www.cornerstonemusicmk.co.uk, from around 8 June. Special rates for parties available. Ring 01908 246486 or 07961 348697 for details.

This is a charity concert in aid of Advantage Africa.

FRIENDS AND PATRONS OF MUSIC AT THE CITY CHURCH

You can support 'Music at the City Church' by becoming a 'Friend of Music'. Friends enjoy regular discounts on the cost of midweek evening concerts. We recommend a minimum annual donation of £15, or £25 for a couple. To become a 'Patron' a donation of £50 is suggested. The names of patrons are listed in the programmes of our major concerts. Please send your donation to Mrs J Boynton at MK City Church, 300 Saxon Gate West, Milton Keynes, MK9 2ES, marking the envelope 'Friend' or 'Patron' and writing your address on the reverse of the cheque. Cheques payable to Church of Christ the Cornerstone. A 'Friend' card will then be issued to you. If you are a tax payer it would be helpful if you could complete a form which allows us to gift aid your donation - these are available at concerts or on request from the above address. If your Friendship has lapsed (i.e. if it is a year or more since you last subscribed), we hope you will take this opportunity to renew your subscription.

Thank you

Jill Boynton
(Administrator/Treasurer)
